WANTED, VOLUNTEERS

COULD YOU TRAIN AS AN ADVISER FOR YOUR LOCAL CITIZENS ADVICE BUREAU?

In the past year, the local Citizens Advice Bureau has dealt with a staggering 12,000 enquiries from the public. Some clients visited the Bureau in person, others sought advice via the telephone and some requested a home visit. Many sought advice about complicated and sometimes, multiple problems which meant that they needed advice on more than one occasion.

It is only possible for the Citizens Advice Bureau to provide this level of help to the local community because of our team of dedicated volunteers who each work for the bureau a minimum of one day a week. To ensure that we can continue to meet the community's needs we wish to recruit and train more volunteer advisers.

Volunteers are drawn from all walks of life, all age groups and are of both sexes. They need no previous experience of advice work as full training and support is provided.

The training, which requires a commitment of about one and a half days a week for around six months, leads to a National Certificate in Advice Work and accreditation is also possible through the Open College Network.
