

Under New Management! A Pint in the Quart Pot

After a short break it is heartening to see the Quart Pot back under the management of mother and son team, Irene Miles and Chris Jones. After many years running a large social club in Gloucester it has long been Irene's aim to switch to a village pub.

available on Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 6pm to 9.30pm and on Sundays from Noon to 3.30pm.

Party Night

Irene and Chris have plenty of ideas of their own and are planning quiz nights, poker nights and even a Wii night. If you have ideas on what makes the perfect village pub let them know; they are open to suggestions. They hope to have live entertainment on the last Saturday of every month and are recruiting players for darts and pool teams.

Christmas lunch will be served, if there is a demand for it, but the pub will be open for lunch-time drinks. New Year's Eve will be the big party-night with live entertainment. Watch out for leaflets and posters around the village giving details of what is planned over the festive season and after.

We have said it before but if the Wychwoods want to keep their facilities we have to support them, so pop along and see what they have on offer. You will be sure of a warm welcome.

Secret of the 'Two in One' Pie

Already they are working on providing good, home-cooked food, with Irene doing most of the cooking. Thursday night is fish and chip night, with fresh fish delivered from Cornwall. This is proving so popular that they can quickly sell out, so if you fancy this treat you'd better ring and book for either 'eat-in' or takeaway. Friday night is curry night, when Chris comes into his own and does the cooking. To book a table or a takeaway ring: 01993 831707.

On Saturday they serve a special 'two-in-one pie'. If you are intrigued you will have to go along and order one because I am instructed not to reveal the secret. On Sundays you can expect to see a traditional roast on the menu. Food is
