

A Little Note from Max Introducing the New Nursing Clinic

May I start by wishing everyone a very Happy New Year. I hope every pet owner heeded my advice given in 'The Nightmare before Christmas' and had a lovely Vet-free time!

Now I often harp on about my carers' colleagues, but I don't think I have ever told you about the wonderful bunch of Veterinary Nurses he works with. They can often be found behind the scenes looking after the hospitalised patients, monitoring and assisting in theatre or out at our branch surgeries.

Free Check-Ups

Just recently they have launched their brand new 'Nursing Clinic' service specifically tailored to meet every pet-owner's needs. The vet nurses at Stow will happily help you and your pet out with nutritional advice, free check-ups for fleas and worms...and I've even heard they are offering low-cost nail-clips. I might book myself a pedicure. It is around this time of year that my 'carer' dusts off his latest fitness DVD; have you ever wondered if perhaps your pet may need to lose a few pounds? Book your pet an appointment and get them their very own personal weight-loss expert, and the best bit... IT'S FREE!

No fitness DVDs here!

So Get Your Bounce Back!

Obesity in pets is on the increase and it's a serious problem that can literally shave years off your pet's life. With the right support and encouragement our nurses will help your pet to become the size and shape they were designed to be. During this cold weather, has your pet become a little more stiff, had difficulty rising from their bed, or slowed down on walks/exercise? If so why not come and see one of the nurses for a mobility clinic where they can discuss the non-medical options available to help your pet regain its bounce.

Those Lovely Nurses

At a mere 12 years old (that's 78 in human years) I might just treat myself to a mobility clinic, or maybe a weight clinic? Oh who am I kidding I just want to go and visit those lovely nurses. As always my carer and colleagues can be contacted on: 01451 830620, 24 hours a day if you need them.

Lovely chatting to you
Chow! Max
